Introduction

#Culturereset

Exploring institutional and systemic racism particularly in urban communities has provided an opportunity to evaluate the macro and micro elements of racism.

Upon further review and research into past, current and future trends, while racism has shown to be a prevalent plague in society, much of it stems from eugenism.

And this is what we are actually facing in urban communities, not racism.

Objectives

The First Objective

Explore areas of racism within institutions and communities

The Second Objective

Examine rate of response in resolving current or longstanding issues

The Third Objective

Examine how communities are affected from issues

Summary of Methods

Qualitative Methodology

- By conducting interviews, research, case study meetings, outreach, discussions, and various qualitative methods to acquire results and the inferences drawn from the data that is obtained.

Quantitative Methodology

- With the data and information gathered we analysed and derived meanings and understanding from these which are outlined in this experiment results report. This helps to explain 'what' phenomenon are occurring.

Project Findings

SUPPORTED BY DATA FROM THE RESET COMMUNITY RESEARCH, AUGUST 2021

This chart illustrates the length of delays in actions from all levels of government, agencies organizations and property managers.

Analysis of Results

The First Analysis

These issues have persisted for over 10 years, reported in the news numerous times, why still no resolution to residents? There must be a review of those in positions and for how long.

The Second Analysis

Too many residents are actually suffering low morale and those in positions of power do know of this. These methods seems to exist for reasons that only history can answer.

The Third Analysis

By connecting historical actions, ideologies and pursuits, this provides a more clear picture as to why today communities are underserved. This information is necessary to know in order to resolve present day issues.

Conclusion

#CULTURERESET

The pattern of neglecting communities has persisted for over 30 years. The pattern of depriving communities, cultures and races even longer.

In the age of information it's time to do something with this information by putting it to good use and resolve these issues with new approaches.

The old and current one is built to marginalize communities and its time our generation acknowledge this with real solutions that is going to restore morales & ethics to these communities .
